As a nationally-recognized family resource center, HPP empowers low-income and homeless families, particularly mothers motivated by pregnancy and parenthood, to develop the strength and confidence they need to transform their lives. For 30 years, HPP has been built on a foundation of supportive, nonjudgmental, trauma-informed case management to help families end the cycle of childhood poverty. As the first agency in San Francisco to hire former clients as Case Managers, the agency’s growth and evolution has been guided by those it serves.

Dear Friends,

This annual report spans the Homeless Prenatal Program’s (HPP) fiscal year, which began with great celebration in anticipation of our 30th Anniversary in the fall. Perhaps it’s because of this milestone that HPP was able to meet the spring ahead. When the COVID-19 pandemic hit in March, HPP was able to draw on three decades of experience to help pivot its programs and services to help families through this uncharted time.

We want to thank all our supporters for helping HPP become a thriving, dynamic family resource center. When HPP first opened, we served 52 homeless, pregnant women with a budget of $52,000 and a staff of three. This year, we served 2,963 families with a budget of $13M and a staff of 100. Over the years our program has grown, and this year marked considerable growth. As you’ll read in this report, we were able to open Jelani House, a transitional living facility for pregnant and postpartum homeless people in the Bayview District, and our Community Health Worker Training Program became an accredited apprenticeship program.

Of course, last summer, we couldn’t have imagined how our program would grow and change the following spring. When shelter-in-place began, we had no idea that in the immediate weeks and long months to come, demand for support would double, triple and quadruple. In the first few weeks of the pandemic, we shifted quickly to respond to family needs. We went from giving emergency food away to 70 families weekly, to distributing food to a line that wrapped around the block, hundreds-deep.

When HPP began, family homelessness was a newly emerging problem. Over time, the problem has increased and become compounded by generational poverty and, of course, institutional racism. It’s perhaps no surprise that the majority of families HPP serves are families of color. This past summer, America began to grapple more fully with the recognition that we were fighting two pandemics: the virus and systemic racism. Our neighbors of color were not only getting sick at higher rates than our white neighbors; they also bore the brunt of the economic crisis as COVID upended our daily lives. And on top of this, various acts of tragic, hateful racial violence reinvigorated the Movement for Black Lives and initiated a much-needed, more honest national conversation about equity. Let’s hope that one day we can look back at this summer and remember this time as a turning point for America.

We want to say thank you. Thank you for being a part of our community, whether you’ve been a donor since our humble beginnings or you’re just learning about our work. It’s an honor to serve in partnership with you.

AGENCY GOALS

HEALTHY BABIES
Perinatal services to promote healthy pregnancies, births and bonding

SAFE, STABLE HOUSING
Housing support, including education, resources and limited rental assistance

NURTURING RELATIONSHIPS
Services designed to strengthen families and promote protective factors

ECONOMIC SUSTAINABILITY
Job training, financial education and other resources to encourage family stability and self-sufficiency
PROGRAMS & SERVICES

CLIENT SERVICES
Daily drop-in (or phone/email) support, crisis management, emergency services (including food, clothes, diapers, hotel vouchers) and referral services. Client Services also manages various partner relationships that can be useful for families, expanding HPP’s programming to include legal assistance (Project Legal Link), preschool navigation (Wu Yee) and credit counseling (Consumer Credit Counseling Service of San Francisco.)

HOUSING ASSISTANCE
HPP’s Housing Assistance Program helps homeless and low-income families in securing and maintaining stable housing. Program services include housing search and placement, financial assistance with move-in costs, lifting barriers to obtaining housing, budget counseling and short-term rental subsidies. HPP also offers daily Housing Workshops to help educate families on housing processes (including search, tenants’ rights and responsibilities, etc.).

FAMILY SUPPORT
HPP utilizes a holistic approach to empower pregnant women and families through trauma-informed case management services that help families work toward goals. HPP offers case management to families with complex needs such as high-risk pregnancies, involvement with child welfare and/or substance use disorders, domestic violence, complex challenges to housing and/or a variety of factors that require more intentional and long-term support.

WELLNESS & STABILITY SERVICES

In addition to providing one-on-one family support, HPP offers a variety of other programs and services designed to help families thrive:

WELLNESS CENTER
Activities that encourage a healthful transition from pregnancy to parenting by offering a holistic and integrated array of services designed to help women deliver healthy babies, encourage mother/child bonding and acquire parenting skills that promote positive child development, including prenatal classes, group prenatal care, alternative health services (e.g., prenatal yoga classes, acupuncture, doula support), postpartum support, lactation consulting and family planning counseling.

MENTAL HEALTH & PARENTING SERVICES
Onsite individual, couples, family and group therapy to HPP clients, as well as parenting classes, fatherhood services and children’s playgroups. Specialized services for families and young children who have witnessed community or family violence (offered onsite through the Child Trauma Research Project).
WHAT’S NEW

JELANI HOUSE

After years of planning, HPP was finally able to open Jelani House, a transitional living facility for homeless, pregnant women and newborns, just weeks before the shelter-in-place order began. Jelani House can house up to 18 women (and their babies), and offers a variety of programs and services ranging from prenatal classes to support finding permanent housing. Moreover, Jelani House helps new mothers build community as they overcome the challenges and celebrate the joys of new parenting and work toward stability.
COMMUNITY HEALTH WORKER APPRENTICESHIP PROGRAM

This year, HPP’s Community Health Worker (CHW) Training Program became an accredited apprenticeship program recognized at the state (the only CHW apprenticeship program in California) and federal level. Accreditation allows participants to receive a rich job training curriculum and an apprenticeship credential that expands professional opportunities. Upon graduation, participants also have completed 75% of their college coursework toward a CHW Certificate from City College of San Francisco.

With this new accreditation, the CHW Program is now a 16-month “earn and learn” program that prepares former clients and women from the community for careers in community health. HPP welcomed 8 new CHWs in May and is excited to grow together with them.
As the shelter-in-place mandate took effect in March, HPP transitioned quickly, knowing that the COVID-19 health crisis — then a seemingly fleeting, but also serious crisis — would affect the agency’s clients. Almost immediately, new families were reaching out for diapers and food, having been laid off from domestic jobs or finding fewer riders for car share gigs. Likewise, current clients expressed worry about feeding their kids, many of whom were usually supported with school meals. And everyone — staff and clients alike — was just beginning to understand the tragic and unparalleled impact of the pandemic in our communities.

Understanding families needed HPP more than ever before, the agency quickly began offering remote case management, while likewise ramping up its crisis support. Prior to the pandemic, HPP distributed food bags to 70 families weekly; a few months into shelter-in-place, nearly 500 families wrapped around the block every Friday seeking groceries, diapers and household essentials.

Since this report spans the agency’s fiscal year (July 1, 2019 to June 30, 2020), the following numbers are reflective of the agency’s crisis response in those first few months of the pandemic (March – June):

- 506 remote therapy sessions
- 378 job readiness sessions
- 241 virtual groups

Although there were efforts to house unsheltered people in hotels to slow the spread of the virus early into the pandemic, these efforts largely did not prioritize families. In response, HPP partnered with two other SF-based service providers (Compass and Hamilton Families) to independently shelter families. In April, HPP secured a contract with a 30-room SOMA-based hotel and filled its rooms with homeless families sheltering-in-place. The project cost $85,000 (shared between HPP, Compass and Hamilton Families). Within months, all 30 families moved into transitional or permanent housing.

CLARA & BEVERLY AN HPP CLIENT STORY

“We came to San Francisco exactly a year ago today,” says Clara Herrera, and what a year it’s been for Clara and her family.

After making the dangerous trek from Guatemala through Mexico to seek asylum in the United States, Clara, her husband and 5-year-old daughter Beverly moved in with family living in San Francisco, but it wasn’t long before the landlord found out and threatened them with eviction. That’s when Clara came to HPP. She says, “HPP gave me a big helping hand from the beginning. My case manager worked with Compass [Family Services] to help us get what we needed, and after Compass approved us for subsidized housing, HPP case managers would help me look for apartments and fill out applications every week.”

While she searched for housing, Clara discovered she was pregnant. She wanted the baby, but because she hadn’t yet secured housing, she was worried. “My case manager Vanessa gave me a lot of emotional support. She said the baby could be a blessing for my life and that HPP would help as much as it could.”

Clara soon found housing. Then came COVID-19. Like tens of millions of people across the US, her husband has been out of work since March, but as asylum-seekers, Clara’s family doesn’t qualify for most safety net benefits offered to unemployed Americans. However, HPP has been committed to making sure families like Clara’s don’t fall through the cracks. “What’s helped me a lot,” she says, “are the food cards provided by HPP. The weekly food bags also help a lot. Thanks to all of this we have been able to eat.”

Clara plans on staying in San Francisco and hopes to go back to school to learn English. With her baby almost due, she is hopeful for the future. “They told me it’s a girl,” she says. “And HPP gifted me a really nice stroller, a crib, diaper bag, diapers, wipes. The truth is I’m really appreciative of HPP.”
“HPP GAVE ME A BIG HELPING HAND FROM THE BEGINNING”

This summer, HPP lost one of its most beloved employees, Judy Crawford, better known to staff and clients as “Miss Judy”. Miss Judy dedicated 18 years of service to the agency, working as a Case Manager helping families in need overcome crisis. Judy was a part of many teams at HPP, but always kept families facing substance use challenges at the heart of her work. Whether leading a Narcotics Anonymous (NA) meeting or meeting with clients, Judy’s strength and empathy guided her to help countless families. Her bright smile and buoyant laugh were a treasure to the staff and clients of HPP — and all who knew her. Following a short illness, Miss Judy passed away. However, her memory will continue to shine on at HPP, as the alcove where Miss Judy spent so many mornings leading NA meetings will be dedicated to her.
TOGETHER WE’RE GIANT
In July, HPP celebrated its 7th collaboration with three-time World Series-winning San Francisco Giants Manager Bruce Bochy, his wife Kim and Amici’s East Coast Pizzeria to raise money for families in need. Giants fans gathered at both San Francisco Amici’s locations to meet Bruce, and an incredible 100% of proceeds from Amici’s purchases went to HPP! This event raised $50,000, contributing to a grand total of nearly $300,000 over the years. We are truly grateful to Bruce and Kim Bochy and to Amici’s for this all-star partnership. Go Giants!

30TH ANNIVERSARY LUNCHEON
This year’s Annual Luncheon was especially festive, as it marked the agency’s 30th Anniversary with a special appearance by the internationally-renowned writer — and HPP supporter — Isabel Allende. Isabel addressed a crowd of over 500 gathered in the Fairmont Ballroom, and spoke with sincerity and humor about the importance of HPP’s work. This milestone event also honored the achievements of community leader Ramona Woodruff-Benson, as well as the contributions of longtime HPP volunteer Carol Suto. This truly memorable event raised a record-breaking half a million dollars to support the agency’s programs and services. Thank you to all who helped to make this event such an incredible success.

EVENT COMMITTEE:
Victoria Camelio and Erica Hunt (Co-Chairs), Megan Callahan, Tallie Fishburne, Lisa Jason, Deepa Reddy, Catherine Stam

THE ANNIVERSARY PARTY
Last winter, HPP celebrated its anniversary “On Top of the World” (as the event name announced) at the Ohana Room on the 61st floor of Salesforce Tower. This event gathered a festive group of close HPP friends and new supporters to raise a glass to the agency’s three decades of service to the community and to the many years to come.

OUR HOUSE WAS YOUR HOUSE
As the pandemic upended Our House party plans, HPP moved the agency’s annual celebration into living rooms across the Bay! Event “guests” enjoyed a curated playlist to fit the retro-futurism theme, videos featuring our work and how the virus affected families in those first few months, a cocktail tutorial and a wine raffle. While it wasn’t the Our House we are used to — sharing laughs in the garden and dancing together under the disco ball — the virtual format was a night … or an on-demand watch … to remember!

In 1989, HPP Founder Martha Ryan wrote a grant proposal to the San Francisco Foundation to start a project she named “The Homeless Prenatal Program.” This grant landed on the desk of Program Officer Ruth Brousseau. Ruth called Martha after reading the proposal to ask a few questions and make some suggestions. When Martha hung up the phone, she realized with excitement and some surprise, that her project might get funded. A year later, HPP received its first grant of $52,000. Ruth has become a close friend of the agency and is now a monthly donor to the agency’s Invest in a Family program. Because of Ruth’s belief in the potential of HPP, the agency has been able to help tens of thousands of families break the cycle of poverty and homelessness.

Many thanks to Ruth and to all of our supporters over the years. We could not do our work without you.
