ABOUT

As a nationally-recognized family resource center, HPP empowers low-income and homeless families, particularly mothers motivated by pregnancy and parenthood, to develop the strength and confidence they need to transform their lives. For 30 years, HPP has been built on a foundation of supportive, nonjudgmental, trauma-informed case management to help families end the cycle of childhood poverty. As the first agency in San Francisco to hire former clients as Case Managers, the agency's growth and evolution has been guided by those it serves.

AGENCY GOALS

HEALTHY BABIES

Perinatal services to promote healthy pregnancies, births and bonding

SAFE, STABLE HOUSING

Housing support, including education, resources and limited rental assistance

NURTURING RELATIONSHIPS

Services designed to strengthen families and promote protective factors

ECONOMIC SUSTAINABILITY

Job training, financial education and other resources to encourage family stability and self-sufficiency

CLIENT SERVICES

Daily drop-in (or phone/email) support, crisis management, emergency services (including food, clothes, diapers, hotel vouchers) and referral services.

HOUSING ASSISTANCE

FAMILY SUPPORT

Trauma-informed support for families with complex needs such as high-risk pregnancies, involvement with child welfare and/or substance use disorders, domestic violence, mental health needs, complex challenges to housing and/or a variety of factors that require more intentional and long-term support.

JELANI HOUSE

Transitional living facility for homeless pregnant and postpartum women located in the Bayview District. Residents receive 24-hour support and assistance with permanent housing.

WELLNESS CENTER

Activities that encourage a healthful transition from pregnancy to parenting by offering a holistic and integrated array of services designed to help women deliver healthy babies, encourage mother/child bonding and acquire parenting skills that promote positive child development, including prenatal classes, group prenatal care, alternative health services (e.g., prenatal yoga classes, acupuncture, doula support), postpartum support, lactation consulting and family planning counseling.

MENTAL HEALTH & PARENTING SERVICES

Onsite individual, couples, family and group therapy to HPP clients, as well as parenting classes, fatherhood services and children's playgroups.

COMMUNITY HEALTH WORKER (CHW) APPRENTICESHIP PROGRAM

In partnership with our families, break the cycle of childhood poverty

Dear Friends,

When the agency's fiscal year began in July of 2020, the Homeless Prenatal Program (HPP) already transitioned to its COVID-19 response. Staff had begun seeing clients virtually from their kitchen tables alongside their kids as they summer vacationed-in-place. Clients were adapting to new technologies whether connecting with therapists via phone or participating in groups and classes on Zoom. As the wider community grappled with questions of practical safety (how many households can gather together, are masks required indoors), HPP grappled with one major question of necessity: how will we continue to serve our families and meet increased demands for support, food, diapers, baby essentials and housing?

The answer turned out to be simple: we did it together.

Together with our colleagues, we built innovative solutions to new problems. Prior to COVID, HPP would distribute approximately 75 food bags to families weekly alongside strollers, diapers and household essentials. In spring of this year, HPP was distributing 750 food bags weekly. A skeleton crew of hard-working staff gathered on Fridays to make this possible, handing out items from our open air garage and dropping bags at the doorsteps of immunocompromised clients and moms who just delivered new babies.

Together with our clients, we learned how to offer services remotely. During the darker days of the pandemic, case managers adjusted their approach to service-delivery. Case managers checked in with clients more frequently, especially mindful of those with histories of domestic violence, depression, medical challenges, substance use disorders and other difficulties. We witnessed what we've always known: our families are creative, resilient and strong.

And together with you — our donors and supporters — we did this without missing a step. Your generosity during this time has been unprecedented. As we continue to work through the continued pandemic, taking stock of all that's changed and all that's lost, I am comforted by the kindness of our community and the ongoing realization that we do this work together.

Thank you; we are honored by your support.

With gratitude,

Martha Ryan
Founder & Executive Director

Power Up Fund

As families faced job losses, many struggled to make rent in the early days of the pandemic. In August, the Power Station Foundation gave HPP a $100,000 seed grant that would become the agency's Power Up Fund. The Power Up Fund helped families pay rent and rental minimums to ensure housing stability. Even after formal eviction prevention and rental relief programs were in place, HPP families were often ineligible for support or owed amounts in excess of forgiveness available. In time, the Power Up Fund grew to over half a million dollars — all in private support. The Power Up Fund continues to be a flexible fund that helps families stay healthfully housed. This fiscal year, HPP spent $328,255 of the Power Up funds to keep 69 families housed.

Pop-Up Vaccine Clinics

Together with the Native American Health Center, HPP held two COVID-19 vaccine clinics onsite for clients and staff. These were held on Fridays so that families stopping by for food bags and other weekly emergency supplies could get vaccinated quickly and easily while onsite. Clinicians and staff were also able to answer client questions and offer public health education about the virus and the vaccine.

Acts of Kindness

HPP received an anonymous donation offering $500 gift cards to families as a surprise "Act of Kindness". With this one-time sum, families reported being able to afford car repairs, dental work, computers and address other higher cost needs. This was an incredible gift by the donor, with a sum enabling families to afford needs beyond the basics of groceries and everyday essentials.

MEET DAISY

Daisy Gonzalez had already overcome so much by the time she came to the Homeless Prenatal Program (HPP). After many years of struggling with substance use, Daisy was turning her life around. She had secured transitional housing at San Francisco's Cameo House. She had started attending classes at City College of San Francisco. She had narrowly avoided time in prison, by impressing the judge overseeing her case with all the community work she'd done over the four years she fought the case. Most importantly, Daisy had reunited with her daughter Mireyah, after Child Protective Services (CPS) had removed the child from her home at three-years-old.

Despite all she had accomplished, Daisy had much more to do, and with stable housing playing such an important role in recovery, safe, permanent housing would be key. "My CPS worker had recommended HPP's Bringing Families Home (BFH) program in the past, but I had turned it down because at the time my lawyer was saying I would be going to prison," she says. With prison no longer a possibility, "I contacted my old CPS worker, and she put me in touch with HPP." Daisy could finally take advantage of the opportunities and support HPP had to offer. She could finally start planning a future for herself and her family.

Through HPP's BFH program, Daisy received a housing voucher and began the housing search process. "There's so much stigma associated with people that have Section 8. Some landlords straight up tell you, 'no,' as soon as they find out you have Section 8. It doesn't matter that it's illegal," she says. Working with her BFH Case Manager, she was motivated to keep going. "I wanted to give up sometimes, but [my Case Manager] made such a huge difference. To have someone have your back like that, it's so good, and it works!"

The support didn't end once Daisy found housing either. She says, "What people don't realize is that you can house people all you want, but it's not just about housing them. It's also about teaching them how to live in that space and live in their new skin." With the help of her BFH Case Manager, Daisy navigated the various fears she faced settling into a new place, and with the help of HPP's Emergency Services and Homegoods programs, she was able to make her house a home, filling it with food, appliances, cookware, furniture, bedding, etc. “I hadn’t made a meal in four years, and now, I can cook for my daughter! HPP is just such a beautiful place,” she says.

It’s been a year since she secured housing, and Daisy is still stably housed and living with Mireyah. She is close to completing coursework for an Associate’s Degree in Social and Behavioral Sciences and has started working at the Recovery Survival Network — a nonprofit that helps people leaving residential drug / alcohol treatment programs and criminal justice system re-enter society. “I really relate to the clients and...when I hear that my clients are going to HPP, I tell them, ‘You’re good. You can trust them,’” she says. Daisy hopes to be a homeowner one day, having improved her credit score and paid off all her debt. She says, “I’m looking forward to seeing where life takes me. I’ve learned to just focus on the next good thing.”

“...you can house people all you want, but it’s not just about housing them. It’s also about teaching them how to live in that space and live in their new skin.”

An Evening with Friends for Families

In October, HPP held its first live virtual event: An Evening with Friends for Families. Although we missed our in-person gathering, we were taken aback by the generosity of our supporters and raised over $300,000 for our programs and services.

Hosted by San Francisco Giants Announcer, Renel Brooks-Moon, the event was streamed live from HPP's headquarters with surprise guest appearances from Kim and Bruce Bochy and Lateefah Simon, followed by a delightful performance from Paula West. Viewers learned about the COVID-19 relief efforts taking place at HPP and Jelani House. We were honored to feature the work of Congregation Emanu-El and to observe the dedicated work of former client and HPP Housing Associate, Antoinette Fort.

Thank you for taking the time to be alongside us in your homes.

Jelani House Turns One!

Just before the pandemic hit, HPP and the City of San Francisco opened Jelani House, a transitional housing shelter for pregnant women located in the Bayview District. In addition to shelter, Jelani House offers a menu of services including prenatal/postnatal support, “mommy and me” classes, therapy and recovery support, housing assistance and job training. Moreover, Jelani House builds community with shared meals, community celebrations and events including karaoke nights and baby fashion shows. Moms and their babies can stay at Jelani up to a year after their babies are born, and staff works with moms to save money, secure childcare, build resumes and find permanent housing. By the end of its first year, 15 of the 30 residents had already moved into permanent housing. HPP sends a big thanks to its wonderful partners, community volunteers and dedicated staff that have made Jelani House a home.

Clean Air for All

Lizzy and Alicia have never met in person, but together they helped hundreds of families-in-need prepare for this year’s fire season. They are members of the Facebook group Smoke Season Support, which encourages community-building during fire events. Lizzy and Alicia, both moms, wanted to do something to help others in advance of this year’s fires. Lizzy had given birth right as last year’s fires were ramping up and she remembered the stress in thinking about her baby’s first breaths of unhealthy air. With this in mind, they decided to leverage their networks and social media parenting groups to help raise money for air purifiers for families that couldn’t otherwise afford them. After connecting with the Homeless Prenatal Program (HPP), Alicia began calling air purifier companies, hoping to secure a discount. Instead, she secured a donation of 500 air purifiers and replacement filters from the Swedish company Blueair (a donation worth over $150K) as part of their Freedom to Breathe campaign. We are so grateful to Lizzy and Alicia for not only thinking of our families during fire season — but also for their initiative in securing this incredible donation.
